PSV Glass acquire Bus & Coach Glazing

Move described as a 'natural progression' of a close working relationship

PSV Glass, the industry's renowned supplier of bus and coach glass and managed glass replacement services, has acquired the specialist glazing division of Plaxton - Bus and Coach Glazing. The acquisition includes all Bus and Coach Glazing personnel and their service vehicles based at Anston, Glasgow and Harlow.

PSV Glass believes the move is a natural progression of the close working relationship formed when PSV Glass became the contracted supplier to Bus and Coach Glazing in 2007. The acquisition will further improve the dedicated service support provided to all Plaxton and Bus and Coach Glazing customers, regardless of the type of PCV operated and is available 24/7 by calling 0800 220077.

Steve Pitwood Brown, business development manager at PSV Glass said: "For the past four years and working closely with a network of contracted Fitting Service Providers, we have successfully managed many operator's glass fitting requirements through our unique Glass Managed Solutions scheme. The acquisition of Bus and Coach Glazing ensures the continuing robustness of our partnership arrangements with Fitting Service Providers and installers.

"We also firmly believe we can bring to installation the excellence and reliability for which our glass distribution business is renowned and as a result, strengthening the replacement glass management process for the benefit of operators and installers alike".

Pete Gallop, general manager at Bus and Coach Glazing explained that "Synergies between both organisations will complement each other to the benefit of all our customers through enhanced support. Our Bus and Coach Glazing mottoes, 'When you need glass, you need it fast' and 'All makes, all models, all ways' now significantly take on more relevance".
